ILLINOIS STATE FAIR OPENS IN CAPITAL TODAY

Predict Fair And Cool Weather For Inaugural

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—(P)—Their own preparation work completed, officials of the 84th annual Illinois state fair tonight got a prediction of fair and cool weather tomorrow for the inaugural of the exposition.

The forecast not only was for today's rain clouds to disappear, but for warm, clear weather Sunday and Monday.

The vanguard of an expected half-million visitors to the nine-day show this afternoon wandered through the daily decorated grounds taking an advance peek at the agricultural, industrial and amusement exhibits which opened exhibition buildings. Over on the midway they saw final preparations for the rides and sidestows.

The gates officially open tomorrow morning with a record attendance expected on "thrill day." Many of the huge crowd, incidentally, will be guests of the fair management, using some of the thousands of free gate passes issued by state employees.

The morning program tomorrow will be principally sight-seeing. All exhibits will be open but judging of most of the competitions will not begin until Monday. In the afternoon the first show before the amphitheater will be staged with the events of motor cycle and automobile stunts designed to pull every spectator from his seat.

With Irwin and his aids taking care of the entertainment of the huge crowds expected during the fair, Dr. Frank Jirka, state health director and a staff prepared to insure their safety and set up first aid stations, while State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas checked the grounds and buildings for fire hazards.

Final plans were announced also tonight for the seventh annual Veterans' day program at the fair Sunday.

Bands from all parts of the state will compete, along with drill teams and drum corps. The competition will begin at 9 a. m. Sunday amid a pageant of color and continue for 12 hours before Governor Horner presents silver trophies to the winners.

"Red" Invaders Have Suffered Heavy Losses

Regular Troops Launch Night Attack Against Defenders

Allegan, Mich., Aug. 14.—(P)—Regular troops of the invading "Red" army (dubbed) a night attack tonight on "Red" positions along a 12-mile front border the defending "Blue" forces. Three of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin national guardsmen participating in the western Michigan war.

Mechanized units of the "Red" army thrust forward at the region about the Allegan City Dam, a mile north of the headquarters of the thirty-third division.

At the same time artillery units of both thirty-second and thirty-third national guard divisions laid a theoretical curtain of fire along a country road from Burnips corners to Allegan.

Long columns of infantry were moved up during the day to reinforce critical points on the "front."

Umpires announced that so far the "Red" invaders have suffered the heaviest losses in the operations which started yesterday morning.

The first "box score" of the war games disclosed that the "Red" losses included 87 killed and 57 wounded, in addition to the destruction of three armored cars, 15 combat cars, five airplanes and seven scout cars.

The losses of the defending "Blue" national guardsmen included 43 killed and 80 wounded, and one tank, one truck and two airplanes destroyed.

SALES FOR EUROPE

New York, Aug. 14.—(P)—John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers leader who organized the committee for industrial organization, sailed for London late today, declining to comment on the suspension order of the American Federation of Labor.

"I will make no comment upon that letter now," Lewis said. "You can merely say I am making a deferred trip abroad."

Lewis said he would meet his wife and son, John L. Lewis, Jr., in London Aug. 25, and return to New York aboard the liner Manhattan, due back here Sept. 3. That is two days before the ultimatum from the American Federation of Labor expires.

Purnell said Thompson would make his first speech at a Republican rally at Eagle Grove, Ia., on Aug. 25.

He also was scheduled to speak at the Tazewell county fair at Pekin, Ill., Aug. 27, and at the Bureau county fair at Princeton, Ill., Aug. 28.

East-West Love Ends in Death

Blame for an "East meets West" tragedy in which Miki Takasaka, above, 22, Japanese actress, was slain in Los Angeles, Calif., was placed on Miki herself by her two actress sisters. They described Ray Johnson, 39, Miki's American lover suspected of the slaying, as devoted and faithful to his sweetheart. Police said Miki lately had divided her attention between Johnson and an American man she met on a bus.

Recheck of WPA Employees in 3 Areas Ordered

Illinois Emergency Relief May Remove Many from Rosters in State

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(P)—A recheck of Works Progress Administration employees in three areas was ordered today by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, in an effort to determine how many of the 151,000 relief cases now cared for by the federal agency here were no longer eligible for such aid.

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the commission, told the members estimates were that for the entire state 10,000 to 12,000 cases could be removed from WPA rolls and their places filled by persons now receiving state relief, with a subsequent saving to the state of about $200,000 monthly.

The areas to be checked, he said, probably would be St. Clair and Macou counties downstate, and certain portions of Chicago.

In approving the partial recheck, the commission voted to limit the cost to $25,000, half to come from state and half from federal funds available to the commission.

During discussion of the recheck, Duncan Smith, member of the commission from East St. Louis and head of a large manufacturing plant here (Aluminum Company of America) said:

"In my own plant, about 100 men were originally hired from the WPA have been called back to that organization. Why, I don't know. It seems to me that men employed in private industry should not return to government rolls."

W. P. A. Actresses Accuse Officials

Boston, Aug. 14.—(P)—Three former WPA actresses accused drama project officials of firing them because they refused to entertain "federal men" at a stag party at which they were ordered to model clothes.

Four men, joining in a general complaint to WPA administrator Harry L. Hopkins, complained of discriminatory treatment in being dropped from the drama project rolls.

All seven sought the ouster of Leonard L. Gallagher, appointed five months after the alleged irregularities and discrimination occurred. Gallagher replied that the complaining actors and actresses were among those dropped from the rolls when a federal order required a cut in quotas.

They had been discharged, he said, because they were unable to prove before a hearing that they had any standing as professionals in the theater.

Gallagher admitted the charge of one girl actress, who reported several months ago being annoyed by the advances of a minor official, had been substantiated and the official dismissed.

The charges of the seven were relayed to administrator Hopkins.

PASSENGERS HURT

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 14.—(P)—Three passengers were injured, one seriously and nine others unhurt, when a bus, (Northland Greyhound), operating between Duluth and Chicago, plunged off the highway after its wheels locked today.

The big machine caromed from the highway as it rounded a curve, slashed down trees for 50 feet and missed a drop over a 30-foot embankment.

Mrs. Catherine Nichols, Kenosha, Wis., suffered a fractured leg; Mrs. Joe Parent, Racine, Wis., suffered shock, and Mrs. Dorothy Poindexter, St. Louis, suffered a shock and a fractured ankle.

P. C. Kinnett of the Alexander community was included in the number of callers in the city yesterday.

1,000 SPANISH ROYALISTS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Incendiary Airplane Bombs Used By Rebels

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 14.—(P)—Mass executives of prisoners and slaughter by incendiary airplane bombs were stories of horror told tonight by refugees from Spain.

The correspondent of Diario Noticias reported from Rosal De La Frontera that rebel forces entered the town of Almedralejo in Badajoz province and executed more than 1,000 militiamen, including about 100 women, who supported the Madrid government.

The City of Badajoz, held by government fighters, was said to be in flames but still resisting the rebel attack.

Refugees pouring across the border into Portugal by the thousands said 19 incendiary bombs were dropped on Badajoz by rebel airplanes.

Observers in the fortified town of Elvas, Portugal, witnessed the blazing bombardment.

Men identified with the Madrid government were arrested and disarmed as they crossed the border, but women and children were allowed to go free.

A major who commanded the government storm guards at Badajoz was among the refugees taken before the Elvas military government where he described the horrors of the bombardment.

Most of the victims were women, children and old people, he said.

The governor of Badajoz also was reported to be among the refugees. He was taken to a hospital suffering a heart attack and vowed never again to return to Spain.

Members of the Portuguese radio club announced it had learned the Madrid government was endeavoring to obtain mediation through a foreign power.

The president of the club said the information was obtained from secretaries in Spanish embassies who recently resigned.

Gen. Jose Millan Astray, founder of the Spanish Foreign Legion in Morocco, left Portugal for Lisbon by automobile where it was understood he would join the Moroccan forces under Gen. Francisco Franco marching against Madrid.

Gen. Astray recently arrived in Portugal from Buenos Aires.

Leon Trotsky is Accused of Plot Against Soviets

Sixteen of His Alleged Colleagues are Thrown Into Jail

Moscow, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Soviet government tonight charged its one-time war minister and revolutionary leader, Leon Trotsky, sought to foster a rebellion from his Norway exile and it jailed 16 of his alleged colleagues.

Direct responsibility for the assassination of Sergei Mironovich Kiroff, colleague of Dictator Joseph Stalin, was attributed to Trotsky, Leon Kamenef and Gregory Zinovieff. Kiroff was slain in 1934.

The three, most powerful enemies of Dictator Stalin in his fight for power after the death of Nikolai Lenin, were charged with planning a campaign of terror and attacks upon leaders of the Soviet regime.

The government asserted that under "the direct direction of Trotsky and the leadership of the so-called United Centers, the Trotsky-Zinovieff gang, prepared a number of terrorist actions against Communist leaders."

"Trotsky sent five agents from abroad into the Union of Soviet Socialist republics," the government charges. The communists did not name leaders against whom the new plot allegedly was directed.

Both Kamenef and Zinovieff now are serving ten year prison sentences for counter-revolutionary activities coincident to the assassination of Kiroff.

Urge Americans To Leave Spain

Washington, Aug. 14.—(P)—The United States government today warned all Americans still in Madrid that unless they left immediately they remained at their own responsibility.

The state department made public a dispatch from Eric C. Wendell, third secretary in charge of the embassy, in which he disclosed he had their last chance to leave the Spanish capital, and that the embassy might—if conditions warranted—be closed. Wendell said that 186 Americans were still in Madrid of whom 65 were in the embassy, and that he expected a considerable number to leave by train tomorrow night for Alicante where they would be picked up by the cruiser Quincy.

The state department has issued several warnings to Americans previously but not in the "final" manner of the present notification.

Europe's Latest 'Strong Man'

10 Million Seed Purchase Planned By U.S. Government

Farmers Whose Grain Was Destroyed By Drought Will Get Aid

Washington, Aug. 14.—(P)—A $10,000,000 seed purchase program to help farmers whose grain for next season's planting was destroyed by drought was framed today by administration officials.

While the seed program was discussed, the drought's devastating effects were reflected on many fronts. Increased farm and food products prices pushed the wholesale commodity price index up one per cent. The forest service reported 1,678 fires during the first ten days of August. Shortages of Red Springs and Durum wheat forecasted continued imports.

Plans for purchasing grain seed through the federal Surplus Commodities Corporation on funds from the farm credit administration were made at a conference this afternoon between F. R. Wilcox, president of the corporation, and W. I. Myers, farm credit governor.

But officials said it might not be possible to make an announcement before Tuesday of next week.

Technicians employed on the project said the farm credit administration would lend "not more than $10,000,000" to the federal Surplus Commodities Corporation to purchase seed supplies of spring wheat, oats, rye, barley and other grains except corn, for resale to farmers.

Situation at a glance:
Portuguese correspondent reports 1,000 loyalists executed.
Loyalists threaten death to hundreds of hostages if San Sebastian-Irun siege continues.
France hints Madrid should meet German demands for satisfaction in reported slaying of nationals and seizure of Reich airplanes.
Both sides claim capture of small towns; little apparent advance in 28th day of rebellion.
Washington begins efforts to free an American reported held hostage by loyalists, along with British mining company employees in Huelva.

Madrid, Aug. 14.—(P)—Spain's socialist government, backed by peasantry and labor, tonight marched against Oviedo in bitter battle against a fascist army.

Government troops were reported within the city fighting to the death in the streets. Loyalist aircraft and artillery laid down a protecting barrage.

The socialist militia was determined to rout the fascist force in that extreme northwest corner of Spain and beat a path through the mountainous mining center to the Portuguese border.

Elsewhere there was little to mark important advances by either side in the 28th day of civil war—a war of peasant and labor volunteers aiding the socialist regime in bloody endeavor to crush a fascist drive for military dictatorship and a huge Spanish army.

Loyalist troops advanced three miles on the Somo-Sierra front in the Guadarrama mountains, with capture of the village of Paredes.

From Washington came reports the state department was attempting to effect rescue of an American reported among 38 members of the staff of a British mining company held as hostages by loyalists in the Huelva mines near that city.

A Lisbon correspondent reported 1,000 government militiamen died in a mass execution by rebels at Almedralejo and that the loyalist city of Badajoz was in flames.

San Sebastian and Irun held fascist hostages, threatening death if a rebel cruiser in the bay of Biscay fired on the two cities, already subjected to aerial bombardment.

Capture of Pozo Blanco near Cordoba in the south and 200 rebel prisoners were reported here. Anti-aircraft brought down a plane attempting to drop food to isolated rebel strongholds near Andalusia.

The strong northern headquarters of rebels at Zaragoza were shelled by loyalist artillery moving westward from Barcelona.

A communique asserted loyalists intercepted a telegram from Jose Gil Robles, rightist leader and former premier, to rebel General Emilio Mola "offering funds for continuation of resistance and endeavoring by words of praise to animate rebel forces."

FR. COUGHLIN OUTLINES HIS MONEY VIEWS

Radio Priest Wildly Cheered At Parley In Cleveland

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—(P)—Opposition to endorsement of any presidential candidate sprang out of the first day's sessions of the National Union for Social Justice convention today, and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin made a special appearance outlining his money views "once and for all."

A delegation from the 25th New York congressional district presented a resolution against presidential endorsements, crystallizing opposition to possible endorsement of Rep. William Lemke of North Dakota, the Union Party's candidate for president. It did not actually name him, however.

Father Coughlin, who has announced his personal support of Lemke, said he expected introduction of another resolution seeking to have the National Union endorse Lemke. The radio priest emphasized that he would not seek to influence the convention's action, which may come tomorrow.

As a climax to a day of noisy demonstrations and tumultuous cheering, Father Coughlin made an unscheduled appearance late in the day and announced "I wish to give our feelings on the money issue once and for all."

"First," he said, "I do not advocate the nationalization of banks and never did."

"Secondly, I do not believe in inflation. I do not believe in printing press money. I have never advocated inflation or printing press money."

"Thirdly, I do not believe in the gold standard any more than I believe in a pig standard."

"Fourthly, I do not believe in licensing private individuals to create money. 'Fifthly, I do not believe in the practice of usury. Today, you cannot be a Christian and believe in the practice of usury."

"Sixthly, I cannot subscribe to the present existence, with its present set-up, of the federal reserve banks because they are usurious."

Today's sessions brought vigorous acclamation from the delegates when Father Coughlin made a scheduled appearance in the morning to acknowledge greetings and again when the keynote, Senator Rush D. Holt (D-W. Va.) attacked the federal reserve system. Applause was loud also when the permanent chairman, Sylvester V. McMahon of Cleveland, announced Father Coughlin would head the committee on adoption of a constitution.

A settlement in the custody case was reached last night after two days of wrangling, whereupon Roland Rich Woolley, attorney for Miss Astor, issued a statement that brought from Dr. Thorpe's counsel a threat to reopen the litigation.

Later, Joseph Anderson, attorney of the movie star, said Dr. Thorpe for Dr. Franklin Thorpe, ex-husband had agreed not to reopen the struggle.

Yesterday, Judge Knight approved a settlement that provided for the impounding of Miss Astor's lavender ink diary, and awarded the custody of her four-year-old daughter, Marylyn, to the actress for nine months of the year and to Dr. Thorpe for three months.

New York, Aug. 14.—(P)—The cry along Broadway tonight was "Hold onto your hats, boys—the 'Prince' is back."

Harry F. Gerguson, the pseudo Mike Romanoff, has returned to the bright lights which he renounced more than a year ago to become a "gentleman farmer" in Virginia.

The dapper little "Prince Mike," a former pants presser who passed himself as a Russian prince in the best circles of society, only to be bounced out on his ear, was discreetly silent on his future plans as he made the rounds of the night clubs.

When he left New York for the southland, after several collisions with the law, he said he was quitting Broadway "forever" and going where he could "work with my hands."

But friends of the nimble-witted prankster recalled that he was given to making melodramatic statements and had expected to see him back long before this.

He was tanned and clear-eyed after a year spent as caretaker on an estate near Fredericksburg, Va., but he was not saying much, one way or the other.

Algeria, Algeria, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Steamer Oranais, carrying a crew of 23 and some passengers, sank tonight off Mostaganem, Algeria.

Two survivors reached shore and one body was washed up. The fate of the others had not been learned.

The Oranais, a vessel of 1,545 gross tons, was registered at Oran, Algeria. It was owned by Scott, Ambrosino, Pugliese Sons & Company, and was built in 1915 at Leith, Scotland. Formerly it was called the Westmoreland.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 14.—(P)—An East St. Louis, Ill., salesman was held in jail here today pending further investigation of a $1500 holdup at the office of the Limerick Loan & Finance Co. in West Frankfort two months ago.

Authorities said the man, booked for investigation, was suspected of having driven the robbers' automobile and of supplying information concerning the loan company office.

West Frankfort authorities said another East St. Louis, George Ramer, had admitted participating in a holdup at the Limerick company. He was identified by G. L. Limerick, president of the company.

Superior Judge Says Mary Astor Case Is Closed

Jurist Terms His Patience "Practically Exhausted"; May Jail Witness

Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—(P)—Superior Court Judge Goodwin J. Knight termed his patience "practically exhausted" today as he stamped the Mary Astor case closed, and threatened one of its principals, playwright, George S. Kaufman, with a jail term.

"I'll put this man Kaufman in jail if we can ever find him," said Judge Knight as Ray Bogie, sheriff's deputy, set out armed with a bench warrant for a futile search at the home of Moss Hart, Kaufman's friend and like him a prominent playwright. Bogie said his best information was that Kaufman is in New York.

Kaufman, subpoenaed by Dr. Thorpe's attorneys, failed to appear in court.

A settlement in the custody case was reached last night after two days of wrangling, whereupon Roland Rich Woolley, attorney for Miss Astor, issued

That Proposed Park

Given a suggestion, workers in the city hall have shown that they have the initiative to develop that suggestion into something worthwhile. That is particularly true of the proposal to construct a park on the site of the Wideman-Daub wells.

The city has long needed a place where its colored population might gather, a place of which they might well be proud. It would seem that building a park along with a road leading to it, would answer a long felt need.

It is to be lamented that it is necessary to house the wells, which have come to the city's rescue in other years, and which will again be called upon to furnish water this year, in vandal proof buildings. However, these buildings can be made attractive, and need not be an eyesore. More trees will have to be planted to provide shade, but trees are not difficult nor expensive to obtain.

It is doubtful that the people in this section of the middle west appreciate the trees, because they are taken for granted. One needs only to take a trip through South Dakota and Wyoming to get a longing to see green foliage again. There are vast stretches of country in these two states where there are no trees. Their absence creates a longing that is difficult to overcome.

The proposed park will create new problems but it will also solve a number of old ones. The new problems should not be as difficult to solve as the old ones have been.

Mrs. Tillie Kelly who for many years was associated with relief activities in this county left her work here with one desire still unfulfilled. She had hoped at some time, to install a few public baths, available for a small charge, and thus assist in promoting the health of the community.

Blood Thirsty Americans

One of a party of conversationalists recently brought up the subject of the American love of a "thrill," and burst forth with the statement that "ninety-nine percent of the American people are blood-thirsty."

As evidence, he pointed to the huge crowds which are attracted to auto races "to see someone get hurt or killed," and the popularity of fights of all sorts. A crowd immediately gathers at the scene of an accident, but disperses almost as quickly if no one has been injured.

It seems a little steep to say that such a large percentage of Americans are "bloody-thirsty" yet an event which occurred Friday lent considerable credence to such a statement.

A negro was to be hanged at Owensboro, Kentucky convicted of ravishing a white woman. It was to be the first public hanging in that county, and it was broadcast beforehand that a woman—the sheriff of the county, would spring the trap in the early morning hours, sending the man to his doom.

From miles around, men, women, and children flocked to the city to watch a man die. Some jeered as the last rites were administered by a priest, and after the trap had been sprung a mob swarmed onto the scaffold and tore the hangman's mask from the negro before his breathing had ceased. They wanted souvenirs of the occasion—wanted something by which to remember the time they had witnessed a man's ignominious death, and they could not even wait for the pronouncement that he was dead before rushing to the scaffold.

Such a sordid incident casts a serious reflection on the intelligence and moral integrity of the American citizen. Who could blame anyone for calling Americans "blood-thirsty"?

Follow-The-Leader

Simply by the purchase of an ordinary cotton shirt, King Edward of Britain started a flood of buying recently on the Dalmatian coast. A type of clothing which before had been deemed good enough only for fishermen suddenly became a valuable piece of merchandise because of the well-known tendency to play "follow-the-leader."

But residents of the Dalmatian coast aren't the only ones who are more than willing to follow in the footsteps of the great and near great. In spite of the pretensions to rugged individualism in America, such things are constantly happening here, sometimes with more far-reaching effects than is generally realized.

Take for instance the bicycling fad which has swept the country during the past few years and which promises to pass from the fad stage into that of a national institution. That was started, so they say, as a publicity stunt in Hollywood.

Tired of photographing the stars in the customary poses, some bright lad conceived the idea of picturing a star astride a bicycle, pedaling her way to happiness, the loss of a few surplus pounds, or what have you.

The idea "caught," and before long highways and byways were laden with two-wheeled messengers. "Bicycles for rent" signs began to appear, and manufacturers reaped a harvest.

Lacking a kink, Americans frequently turn to the stars of Hollywood for ideas on how to dress and act, and on the other end of the bargain, American promoters who wish to push a product into the public's notice have learned the far reaching effects of Emmerson's line: Hitch your wagon to a star.

Dr. Wadsworth Tells Of Experiences of Refugees of Spain

Comes in Contact with Family in Geneva; One is U.S. Naturalized Citizen

Dr. Julian Wadsworth, of the city who has been living in Geneva, Switzerland, recently told of some of the suffering of the Spanish people who fled the country under the shadow of their straightened circumstances in a letter to his sister, Mrs. A. E. Appleton of this city.

Relating his personal contact with refugees from rebellion torn Spain, Dr. Wadsworth told of meeting a family of ten persons, one of whom was a naturalized United States citizen, in a restaurant in Geneva. From them Dr. Wadsworth said he obtained some first hand information as to what was transpiring in Madrid, capital of the nation, and Barcelona.

The members of the family told him how they came to leave the country before serious fighting broke out. One of the men, who had a summer home in one of the suburbs of Barcelona, took a son to see a physician in the city, and learned at that time that the city was in imminent danger of a revolution. For several weeks there had been rumors of a serious revolution pending, but there had been nothing to give foundation to these rumors.

Upon learning from the physician that Barcelona might be embroiled in the first fire of the revolution, the man, whose name Dr. Wadsworth did not state, drove back to his country home, gathered the members of his family, nine persons in addition to himself, snatched two suitcases into which the family placed what it could of its valuables, and left immediately for the seaport. There, in company with another man, they had made arrangements to charter a boat to Marseilles, but just after the arrangement had been completed, an American steamer came into port.

The American consul immediately placed all Americans aboard the vessel. Shots were already flying in the streets of Barcelona. Dr. Wadsworth said the man told him that there was firing in his suburban neighborhood when the family fled so hastily. The naturalized American said he saw several persons dead in the streets, at least three of whom were priests. Communists were in charge of the city, opposing the fascists, and it was under the direction of the Communists that all of the churches in Barcelona were destroyed by fire, and the priests slain.

An aged uncle of the naturalized citizen boarded the boat, with his wife, for the purpose of saying good-bye to the American, but remained on board, and thus left Spain. The American is engaged in cotton buying, and has offices in the United States as well as in Spain.

The American told Dr. Wadsworth that he was forced to leave behind a collection of paintings, which he valued highly, and that there were many other valuables which probably would be missing when the revolution ends. There was little question about which faction the refugees favored. Dr. Wadsworth stated, gathering from their description of the horrors perpetrated by the Communists.

Commissioners Hear Report of Engineer On Belt Line Plans

Proposed Alton Cut-off Also Talked Yesterday at Court House

W. J. Casler, county superintendent of highways yesterday morning reported the facts as he found them Thursday when he conferred with Charles M. Slavemaker and other officials of the state highway department in Springfield in regard to the proposed belt line around the city of Jacksonville to the county commissioners. He also told them of a proposed Alton cut-off from Franklin through Greentield and Rockbridge which was discussed at some length.

The report was received without action by the county commissioners, but they indicated a sincere interest in the route which has been proposed to remove traffic from the streets of the city.

Mr. Casler told the commissioners that it is proposed to construct a spur south from the first turn in Route 104 to a point near the Frank Leach farm, west of the city, thereby taking the traffic which now goes through the city from Route 104, around Jacksonville. The spur will connect with another spur at that point, leaving Route 36 and going east along the rear line of the Fred Rowe and A. H. Delmar property and connecting with Morton avenue. The belt line thus would join Route 36 as it is now located at the corner of South Main street and Morton avenue.

It will be necessary to construct two bridges, one either an overhead or subway type to avoid crossing the Washburn railway tracks west of the city and another to cross the brook. It will also be necessary to change the course of the Brook at another point. The county highway superintendent also said that there has been some action for the Alton cut-off route. The cut-off would leave U. S. Route 67 3 1/2 miles south of Woodson, and take a straight line through Greentield and Rockbridge, and join the present Route 111 near Godfrey. It is estimated that this cut-off would reduce mileage from Jacksonville to Alton by 18 miles.

The Alton cut-off may be included in the next year's budget of projects, along with that of the proposed belt line around the city, the county superintendent said. State Highway Superintendent Ernest Leiberburg will begin preparing the budget for next year within a few weeks.

Miss Ryan Talks to Rotary at Meeting

Tells Experiences During Trip Through Seven Foreign Nations

Miss Charlotte Ryan, local librarian, who recently returned from a tour of Europe, gave her impressions of the seven countries she visited, in an address at the Jacksonville Rotary club in the new banquet room at the New Dunlap hotel at noon yesterday.

Miss Ryan was introduced by Albert Metcalf, chairman of the program committee.

Miss Ryan visited England, Scotland, Holland, Germany, Italy, France and Switzerland. She left Jacksonville June 16, returning August 2.

She said that Italy was the most interesting country. Mussolini, she said, is making Rome the most beautiful city in the world.

In Italy, Miss Ryan said, every third man you meet is in uniform. All the children, both boys and girls, between the ages of 10 and 18 also appear in some sort of uniform. When the boys reach the age of 18 they are taken into the Fascist army.

Miss Ryan said that when she entered both Italy and Germany she was compelled to state the amount of money she had. When leaving the country a statement had to be made of the amount of money left in the country. In Italy if you had in your possession too much Italian money it was confiscated and you are given a receipt for the amount. This receipt can be cashed in when you return to America.

Miss Ryan said that a good guide was necessary in order to get the most out of a trip to Europe. In Italy the guides undergo a rigid examination before they can secure their certificates.

She said that in England business was better than it has been during the past ten years. She noticed that the munitions factories were busy and the English appeared apprehensive of the future.

Guests of the club yesterday were John A. Ayers, and George Lewis, Jacksonville; E. L. Gaines, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Ivan Senter, Pontiac, Mich.; R. B. Still, Bloomington, Ill.

111 Deaths During July in City, Health Department Reports

More Than Doubles Average Death Rate for Month; 74 Patients Die

Deaths in the City of Jacksonville during the month of July amounted to 111, according to a report of the city Health Department, presented to the council at Thursday night's meeting. This number, which compares with an average rate of fifty per month set a new city record for deaths in any one month.

Twenty-six of that number were residents of the city, seventy-four were patients at the State hospital, and eleven were non-residents who died in local hospitals. One death was recorded in South Jacksonville and three in Road District No. Seven, bringing the grand total in the health office registration district to 115.

Six Heat Deaths
Heat prostration was held accountable for six of the local deaths, and it is believed that heat as a contributing cause was a major factor in producing the record number during the month.

Arterio sclerosis, which claimed 34 lives at the State hospital and one other in the city, is believed to have been materially aided by the severe heat which prevailed during the greater part of the month. Several of the 19 deaths attributed to heart disease may also have been hastened by the heat.

July of 1934, which was a month of severe heat comparable to the same month this year, saw a death total of 95 persons, while in July of 1935, which was cooler, 63 deaths were recorded. Thirty-six births during July were recorded in the report, 18 boys and a like number of girls.

FAMOUS RIDERS CARRY BIG STABLE

CRISTIANI TROUPE; CHAMPION EQUESTRIANS OF EUROPE

An entire stable of horses are carried by the famous Cristiani troupe of Italian baroque riders, who are this season touring America with the Al G. Barnes circus. This numbers twelve steeds of Arabian and Australian stock. They are divided between the lighter and swifter type of equine and the broad-backed whites and dapple grays.

The speed at which the Cristiani troupe work their mounts while performing in the ring requires a frequent change of horses, otherwise they would become dizzy. It is the rapidly with which Fred Cristiani turns a backward, twisting somersault from one running horse to another that climaxes an act which old timers of the circus say is the greatest in the long history of the "white tops."

The Cristiani troupe was imported to America by the Al G. Barnes Circus, coming to Jacksonville Saturday, August 22, for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. The doors to the great double

That Proposed Park

Given a suggestion, workers in the city hall have shown that they have the initiative to develop that suggestion into something worthwhile. That is particularly true of the proposal to construct a park on the site of the Widenham-Daub wells.

The city has long needed a place where its colored population might gather, a place of which they might well be proud. It would seem that building a park along with a road leading to it, would answer a long felt need.

It is to be lamented that it is necessary to house the wells, which have come to the city's rescue in other years, and which will again be called upon to furnish water this year, in vandal proof buildings. However, these buildings can be made attractive, and need not be an eyesore. More trees will have to be planted to provide shade, but trees are not difficult nor expensive to obtain.

It is doubtful that the people in this section of the middle west appreciate the trees, because they are taken for granted. One needs only to take a trip through South Dakota and Wyoming to get a longing to see green foliage again. There are vast stretches of country in these two states where there are no trees. Their absence creates a longing that is difficult to overcome.

The proposed park will create new problems but it will also solve a number of old ones. The new problems should not be as difficult to solve as the old ones have been.

Mrs. Tillie Kelly who for many years was associated with relief activities in this county left her work here with one desire still unfulfilled. She had hoped at some time, to install a few public baths, available for a small charge, and thus assist in promoting the health of the community.

Blood Thirsty Americans

One of a party of conversationalists recently brought up the subject of the American love of a "thrill," and burst forth with the statement that "ninety-nine percent of the American people are blood-thirsty."

As evidence, he pointed to the huge crowds which are attracted to auto races "to see someone get hurt or killed," and the popularity of fights of all sorts. A crowd immediately gathers at the scene of an accident, but disperses almost as quickly if no one has been injured.

It seems a little steep to say that such a large percentage of Americans are "blood-thirsty," yet an event which occurred Friday lent considerable credence to such a statement.

A negro was to be hanged at Owensboro, Kentucky convicted of ravishing a white woman. It was to be the first public hanging in that county, and it was broadcast beforehand that a woman—the sheriff of the county, would spring the trap in the early morning hours, sending the man to his doom.

From miles around, men, women, and children flocked to the city to watch a man die. Some jeered as the last rites were administered by a priest, and after the trap had been sprung a mob swarmed onto the scaffold and tore the hangman's mask from the negro before his breathing had ceased. They wanted souvenirs of the occasion—wanted something by which to remember the time they had witnessed a man's ignominious death, and they could not even wait for the pronouncement that he was dead before rushing to the scaffold.

Such a sordid incident casts a serious reflection on the intelligence and moral integrity of the American citizen. Who could blame anyone for calling Americans "blood-thirsty"?

Follow-The-Leader

Simply by the purchase of an ordinary cotton shirt, King Edward of Britain started a flood of buying recently on the Dalmatian coast. A type of clothing which before had been deemed good enough only for fishermen suddenly became a valuable piece of merchandise because of the well-known tendency to play "follow-the-leader."

But residents of the Dalmatian coast region aren't the only ones who are more than willing to follow in the footsteps of the great and near great. In spite of the pretensions to rugged individualism in America, such things are constantly happening here, sometimes with more far-reaching effects than is generally realized.

Take for instance the bicycling fad which has swept the country during the past few years and which promises to pass from the fad stage into that of a national institution. That was started, so they say, as a publicity stunt in Hollywood.

Tired of photographing the stars in the customary poses, some bright lad conceived the idea of picturing a star astride a bicycle, pedalling her (it's nearly always "her") way to health, happiness, the loss of a few surplus pounds, or what have you.

The idea "caught," and before long highways and byways were laden with two-wheeled menaces, "Bicycles for rent" signs began to appear, and manufacturers reaped a harvest.

Lacking a king, Americans frequently turn to the stars of Hollywood for ideas on how to dress and act, and on the other end of the bargain, American promoters who wish to push a product into the public's notice have learned the far reaching effects of Emmerson's line "Hitch your wagon to a star."

Dr. Wadsworth Tells Of Experiences of Refugees of Spain

Comes in Contact with Family in Geneva; One is U.S. Naturalized Citizen

Dr. Julian Wadsworth, of this city, who has been living in Geneva, Switzerland recently, tells of some of the suffering of the Spanish people who fled the country under duress, and of their straightened circumstances. In a letter to his sister, Mrs. A. B. Applebee of this city.

Relating his personal contact with refugees from rebellion torn Spain, Dr. Wadsworth told of meeting a family of ten persons, one of whom was a naturalized United States citizen, in a restaurant in Geneva. From them, Dr. Wadsworth said he obtained some first hand information as to what was transpiring in Madrid, capital of the nation, and Barcelona.

The members of the family told him how they came to leave the country before serious fighting broke out. One of the men, who had a summer home in one of the suburbs of Barcelona, took a son to see a physician in the city, and learned at that time that the city was in imminent danger of a revolution. For several weeks there had been rumors of a serious revolution pending, but there had been nothing to give foundation to these rumors.

Upon learning from the physician that Barcelona might be embroiled in the first flare up of the revolution, the man, whose name Dr. Wadsworth did not state, drove back to his country home, gathered the members of his family, nine persons in addition to himself, snatched two suitcases into which the family placed what it could of its valuables, and left immediately for the seaport. There, in company with another man, they had made arrangements to charter a boat to Marseilles, but just after the arrangements had been completed, an American steamer came into port.

The American consul immediately placed all Americans aboard the vessel. Shots were already flying in the streets of Barcelona. Dr. Wadsworth said the man told him that there was firing in his suburban neighborhood when the family left so hastily. The naturalized American said he saw several persons dead in the streets, at least three of whom were priests. Communists were in charge of the city, opposing the fascists, and it was under the direction of the Communists that all of the churches in Barcelona were destroyed by fire, and the priests slain.

An aged uncle of the naturalized citizen boarded the boat, with his wife, for the purpose of saying good bye to the American, but remained on board and thus left Spain. The American is engaged in cotton buying, and has offices in the United States as well as in Spain.

The American told Dr. Wadsworth that he was forced to leave behind a collection of paintings, which he valued highly, and that there were many other valuables which probably would be missing when the revolution ends. There was little question about which faction the refugees favored, Dr. Wadsworth stated, gathering from their description of the horrors perpetrated by the Communists.

111 Deaths During July in City, Health Department Reports

More Than Doubles Average Death Rate for Month; 74 Patients Die

Deaths in the City of Jacksonville during the month of July amounted to 111, according to a report of the city Health Department presented to the council at Thursday night's meeting. This number, which compares with an average rate of fifty per month, set a new city record for deaths in any one month.

Twenty-six of that number were residents of the city, seventy-four were patients at the State hospital, and eleven were non-residents who died in local hospitals. One death was recorded in South Jacksonville and three in Road District No. Seven, bringing the grand total in the health office registration district to 115.

Six Heat Deaths
Heat prostration was held accountable for six of the local deaths, and it is believed that heat as a contributing cause was a major factor in producing the record number during the month.

Arterio sclerosis, which claimed 34 lives at the State hospital and one other in the city, is believed to have been materially aided by the severe heat which prevailed during the greater part of the month. Several of the 10 deaths attributed to heart disease may also have been hastened by the heat.

July of 1934, which was a month of severe heat comparable to the same month this year, saw a death total of 95 persons, while in July of 1935, which was cooler, 63 deaths were recorded.

Thirty-six births during July were recorded in the report, 18 boys and a like number of girls.

FAMOUS RIDERS CARRY BIG STABLE

CRISTIANI TROUPE; CHAMPION EQUESTRIANS OF EUROPE

An entire stable of horses are carried by the famous Cristiani troupe of Italian bareback riders, who are this season touring America with the A. G. Barnes circus. This numbers twelve steeds of Arabian and Australian stock. They are divided between the lighter and swifter type of equine and the broad-backed whites and dapple grays.

The speed at which the Cristiani troupe work their mounts while performing in the ring requires a frequent change of horses, otherwise they would become dizzy. It is the rapidity with which Fred Cristiani turns a backward, twisting somersault from one running horse to another that climaxes an act which old timers of the circus say is the greatest in the long history of the "white tops."

The Cristiani troupe was imported to America by the A. G. Barnes Circus, coming to Jacksonville Saturday, August 22, for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. The doors to the great double menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m. There are 400 performers with this season's big show. They hail from 18 foreign countries and in addition to the Cristiani troupe of riders, include Bert Nelson, the greatest wild animal trainer of this or any other age; the Angelo family of amazing European acrobats; the Canestrelli sextette, equestrians; the Weir family of wire walkers, and a great mass formation of trained horses in which 40 appear simultaneously in one ring. The A. G. Barnes Circus is enlarged two fold this season.

Arthur Hart Buys Two Pieces of Land

Property Involved in Ater Estate Sells for $49 an Acre Yesterday

Arthur Hart, of Arenzville, was the high bidder on two pieces of property sold at auction yesterday morning on the front steps of the Morgan county court house to pay debts involved in the estate of Charles Ater. Hart bid $49 an acre on one 180-acre tract and $42.25 an acre for a 40-acre tract. The 180-acre tract improved, is located near Arenzville, and is said to consist partly of grass land, and partly of land suitable for raising corn and other grains. There were two mortgages against the 180-acre tract amounting to $41.13 an acre, and taxes of $81.70 for this year, against the property. There is a six-room house and a number of outbuildings on the property. There is 30 acres of corn on the 40-acre tract, half of the corn to go to the purchaser. There was a mortgage and taxes against the property. It was estimated that the corn on the two tracts would run between 40 and 50 bushels to the acre.

FORMER LOCAL MAN LONDON'S BODYGUARD

Story Gets Out Here About a Month After It Was Discovered in Kansas

A story, at least a month old, finally came out Thursday when Gus W. Landon, one of the members of the "Corn-Ed Quartette" who appeared at the notification ceremonies when Governor Alf M. Landon was told that he was to lead a Republican party this fall, was recalling some of the incidents of that trip. The story is that a former local man, Ed Stubbfield, is now Governor Landon's personal bodyguard. Stubbfield is the son of Dr. St. Stubbfield who formerly was connected with the Jacksonville State hospital. Although the information regarding Stubbfield's movements are not accurate, Mr. W. Landon said that he believed Stubbfield left here for Joliet, where he served as a guard at the Illinois State penitentiary for a while. How long he has had his job with a firm, Mr. W. Landon said he didn't know. Stubbfield now is a big strapping fellow weighing between 100 and 200 pounds and standing about 6 feet 2 inches tall. He was well known as a baseball player on the State hospital team, and also played football.

Illini Grid Poster Ready for Showing

Shows Spurgeon Carrying the Ball on End Run Against S. Cal.

Champaign, Ill.—One sure sign that football is just around the corner is the impending appearance of the University of Illinois football poster. This year the card, since Southern California plays at Illinois this year, appropriately carries a scene from the Illinois-Southern California game at Los Angeles last year, when upstart Coach Zuppke led the Illini to a victory over the Trojans. The poster shows the Illini carrying the ball on an end run, with a spectacular display of open football.

Lowell Spurgeon, Illinois halfback, is shown carrying the ball on an end run that gained 25 yards, with Cliff Kuhn, guard, running interference and Tom Wilson, fullback, also in the play. To assist Davis in shielding their eyes from the California glare, Zuppke had them put lamp-black under their eyes, which explains why there are black spots on their faces. Oldtimers will recall that Harold Pogue was usually adorned in this manner. Cliff Kuhn will start on a down-play four August 17 to distribute the poster. His trip will cover about 400 miles and he will be occupied for three weeks, winding up in time to report to the other candidates for the Illini team on September 10. The Illinois windmill sticker is another harbinger of the gridiron season. Upon the Illini Indian symbol, broadly, probably as the thought of the colorful campaign soon to open, the games being listed on the feathers of his head-dress. Greatly increased interest in the Illinois games is reported by C. E. Bowen, business manager, who is busy getting ready for the reception of visitors later in the month.

Chuck Bennie, former Illinois captain and guard, writes from Los Angeles that the Coast is talking generally about the forthcoming trip of Southern California to play Illinois. High school students of the state will be guests at the De Paul football game which will open the season in the Illinois stadium Sept. 26. The boys' sports will be honored Oct. 3, when Washington from St. Louis is the opponent. Dave Strong, one of the leading sophomore candidates for quarterback at Illinois, is a "three-step kicker." The correct technique is two steps but Strong gets his kicks away practically as soon as the conventional kickers and Zuppke do not think his style could be changed effectively. Southern California invades the Big Ten for the first time when a Trojan play at Illinois Oct. 10. They have traveled east to play other teams but their conference encounters have been at Los Angeles, Illinois last year and Iowa under the Ingwersen regime. Coach Bob Zuppke will return to Illinois early in September to get ready for the opening of practice on Sept. 10. He has been visiting his brothers in Minneapolis but will soon go back to Muskegon, Mich., where the death of his wife saddened their many friends. Washington and Illinois football fans in St. Louis are already talking plans for special trains to the Washington game in the Illinois stadium Oct. 3. Early interest in the Southern California game leads Manager C. E. Bowen to predict the largest crowd in the Illinois stadium in years. Bowen expects to see the 45,000 figure at the Army game in 1934 surpassed.

Red Sox Blank Senators 9 to 0

Boston, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Backed by lusty hitting and airtight support, Bob Groom today hurled the Red Sox to a 9-0 victory over the Washington Senators to earn his 14th pitching triumph and his sixth straight of the season. Manager Bucky Harris started Pete Appleton and the Red Soxers whaled him for four hits and as many runs in the first inning. Monte Weaver took over the Washington mound in the second and was battered all over the park. Grove held the Senators to four hits, one a harmless double by Chapman, gave but one pass and had five strikeouts. Score: Washington, 0; Boston, 9. 1st inning: Weaver and Mullins; Appleton, Weaver and Mullins; Grove and R. Ferrell.

Giants Shutout Phillies 3 to 0

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Jim Rippe's big bat and Clyde Castleman's effective pitching gave the Giants a 3-0 victory over the Phillies today, to advance them to a slim 2-2 games back of the league-leading Cardinals. Rippe drove in two of the Giants runs, one with a single in the fourth and another with a base hit in the sixth, and Castleman pitched nine-hit ball to give the Giants their fourth straight win and hand the Phillies their 12th defeat in a row. Philadelphia, 0; New York, 3. 1st inning: Rippe, Castleman and Alwood; Castleman and Mancuso.

Arthur Hart Buys Two Pieces of Land

Property Involved in Ater Estate Sells for $49 an Acre Yesterday

Arthur Hart, of Arenzville, was the high bidder on two pieces of property sold at auction yesterday morning on the front steps of the Morgan county court house to pay debts involved in the estate of Charles Ater. Hart bid $49 an acre for a 40 acre tract, and $42.25 an acre for a 160 acre tract.

The 160 acre tract, improved, is located near Arenzville, and is said to consist partly of grass land, and partly of land suitable for raising corn and other grains. There were two mortgages against the 160 acre tract, amounting to $41.13 an acre, and taxes of $81.70 for this year against the property. There is a six room house and a number of outbuildings on the property.

There is 30 acres of corn on the 40 acre tract, half of the corn to go to the purchaser. There was a mortgage and taxes against the property.

It was estimated that the corn on the two tracts would run between 40 and 50 bushels to the acre.

FORMER LOCAL MAN LONDON'S BODYGUARD

Story Gets Out Here About a Month After It Was Disclosed in Kansas

A story, at least a month old, finally came out Thursday when Gus Waltman, one of the members of the "Corn Fed Quartette" who appeared at the notification ceremonies when Governor Alf M. Landon was told that he was to lead the Republican party this fall, was recalling some of the incidents of that trip.

The story is that a former local man, Ed Stubbfield, is now Governor Landon's personal bodyguard. Stubbfield is the son of Dr. Stubbfield who formerly was connected with the Jacksonville State hospital.

Although the facts regarding Stubbfield's movements are not accurate, Mr. Waltman said that he believed Stubbfield left here for Joliet, where he served as a guard at the Illinois State penitentiary for a while. Just how long he has had his job with Governor Landon, Mr. Waltman said he didn't know.

Stubbfield now is a big strapping fellow weighing between 180 and 200 pounds and standing about 6 feet 2 inches tall. He was well known as a baseball player on the State hospital team, and also played football.

Illini Grid Poster Ready for Showing

Shows Spurgeon Carrying the Ball on End Run Against S. Cal.

Champaign, Ill.—One sure sign that football is just around the corner is the impending appearance of the University of Illinois football poster. This year the card, since Southern California plays at Illinois this year, appropriately carries a scene from the Illinois-Southern California game at Los Angeles last year, when upwinds of 50,000 spectators saw the Illinois sweep the Trojans off their feet with a spectacular display of open football.

Lowell Spurgeon, Illinois halfback, is shown carrying the ball on an end run that gained 25 yards, with Cliff Kuhn, guard, running interference and Tom Wilson, fullback, also in the play. To assist his backs in shielding their eyes from the California glare, Zupke had them put lamp-black under their eyes, which explains why Becker, c. 5 2 2 2 5 Knickerbocker, ss. 3 1 1 0 0 Blacholder, p. 1 0 0 0 0 Feller, p. 1 0 0 0 0 Lee, p. 1 0 0 0 0

Boston, Aug. 14.—(P)—Backed by lusty hitting and airtight support, Bob Grove today hurled the Red Sox to a 9-0 victory over the Washington Senators to gain his 14th pitching triumph and his sixth shutout of the season.

Giants Shutout Phillies 3 to 0

FAN BREEZES By Ernest Savage

Look out for the Giants. Those New Yorkers have been winning their games with startling regularity of late, and have been putting on a spurt while the Cubs and Cards knock each other around.

The Giants were right up in the thick of the fight about this time last year, but they went haywire on their last road trip. If they keep themselves hitting the ball on this next swing around the circuit, look out for trouble at the finish.

Japan, a country noted for its small inhabitants, successfully introduced and had passed a resolution limiting the height for basketball players in international competition. The players not to be any taller than six feet 2 and 13/16 inches.

The resolution probably will be rejected by the Olympic committee, but it will have some bearing on future international games.

The resolution came about when the Japanese looked over the American basketball team in the Olympic games. There was Bill Schmidt, six feet eight inches, Joe Fortenberry, six feet seven inches, Frank Lubin and Ralph Bishon, six feet six. That was just too much height.

American and Canadian basketball officials, however, said they would forget about the limitation when they play international matches.

Pim Goff, one of the star pitchers of the St. Louis Normal baseball team of a few seasons ago, has signed a Brooklyn Dodgers contract and has gone to Lavenport, where he will pitch a few games.

Goff, a lefthander, turned in two no-run no-hit games in one week recently. His decision to join the Dodgers resulted in the withdrawal of the Bloomington Democrats from the national semi-pro tournament at Wichita, Kansas.

Athletics Whip Yankees 10 to 5

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—(P)—The lowly Athletics gave the New York Yankees' murderers' row a lesson in heavy hitting today, smashing out 17 hits, including three homers, for a 10 to 5 victory.

While Buck Ross and Herman Pink were handcuffing the Yanks, the A's landed on Charley Ruffing and three other Yankee pitchers to pile up their score with clusters of three runs each in as many different innings, and a single tally in the fourth.

Bob Johnson and Frankie Hayes each belted homers with a mate on base. Al Niemiec poked the first homer of his big-league career into the stands with the bags clear.

Four hits produced three Philadelphia runs in the second, with two batters by Pinky Higgins and Ross, and Lou Pinney's single bringing them in. Niemiec's homer came in the fourth; Johnson's featured the three-run splurge in the fifth, and Hayes' round tripper high-lighted the final three-run barrage in the sixth.

Dick Glenn's single and Lamar Newcome's error brought in the first Yankee run in the third. Singles by Jake Powell and Tony Lazzeri and Glenn's double added two in the fourth. A Pinch-single by Red Dickey produced another in the sixth, and Rolfe, after doubling, came in on an infield out for the final tally in the seventh.

Curt Davis For Cubs And Ray Davis For Reds Both Are Knocked Off Rubber

Cincinnati, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs stayed on the heels of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals today by trimming Cincinnati's Reds 7 to 5 in the first of a 4-game series.

The game was played in a steady drizzle before 1,380 paid customers.

Frank Demaree started the Cubs toward victory with a second inning homerun, his 14th of the season. His teammates added two more in that stanza and the Cubs never were headed although the Reds threatened in the late innings.

Catcher Ernie Lombardi gave the Reds a ninth inning consolation tally with his ninth home run.

Both the starting pitchers, Curt Davis for Chicago and Ray "Peaches" Davis, were hit soundly. Curt lasted less than four innings but "Peaches" retired in the third.

The defeat cost Cincinnati a chance to tighten its slim hold on fifth place since Boston's Bees, a game behind, lost to Brooklyn.

In the fifth inning, the Reds got four walks and a single yet scored only one run. A double play in the midst of the walks cut down the chance for additional tallies.

RAIL ASSESSMENTS DECLINE SLIGHTLY

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Total assessments of railroad properties in Illinois declined only 4.18 per cent during the past year, one of the smallest drops since the effect of the depression was shown in figures for 1930, the state tax commission announced today.

The eighty railroad companies assessed were valued at $415,791,119 in 1936. The total a year ago was $433,956,367.

"Barring unforeseen factors, railroad assessments should show marked increases in the next few years," said the statement by Simeon E. Leland, acting chairman of the commission.

Two small railroad companies ceased operations during the year, with their property to be assessed by local officials in the future. Valuations were increased for 39 roads and reduced for 41.

The railroads have ten days within which to protest the valuations and ask for public hearings.

Suit Is Filed Against Bankers

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(P)—Thirty-four former officers and directors of the defunct Foreman-State National bank were named defendants in a suit for $680,000 damages filed today in federal court.

Patrick J. Falvey of Glidden, Ia., a stockholder in the old institution, which was taken over by the First National bank of Chicago, was the plaintiff.

He alleged wrongful and illegal cancellation of an $880,000 note given late in 1929 by "some or all" of four of the defendants, Oscar H. Haugan, chairman of the board of directors of the bank; Walter J. Cox, executive vice president, and C. Edward Carlson, a vice president.

After several bank mergers, the bill of complaint went on to state, the note was canceled through a resolution adopted by the director of the Foreman-State National bank, which characterized the note as "utterly worthless and uncollectible."

Dodgers Rally and Beat Bees 4 to 2

Brooklyn, Aug. 14.—(P)—Paced by Big Babe Phelps, with four hits in as many times at bat, the Dodgers came from behind a two-run handicap today to down the Boston Bees 4 to 2 in the opener of the current series.

A three-run rally in the sixth showed Brooklyn in the lead to stay, after the Bees had done all their scoring with a run in the fourth and Al Lopez's homer in the fifth.

Score:

Boston 009 110 000-2 10 1 Brooklyn 000 003 10x-4 9 0 Lanning, Weir, Smith and Lopez; Frankhouse and Phelps.

Chicago Wheat Prices Tumble

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(P)—Huge rural deliveries of wheat at Winnipeg, together with next to no export buying, did much to tumble Chicago prices down 2 cents late today.

Contributing to wheat market weakness was an official announcement that total supplies of wheat in the United States for the 1936-37 season are large enough for usual domestic requirements. Winnipeg receipts of wheat today amounted to 1,722,000 bushels, whereas export purchases were only about 300,000 bushels.

Rains in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana as well as forecasts of more had an earlier bearish effect on the corn market, and indirectly influenced wheat price setbacks.

Wheat closed unstable at almost the day's bottom figures, 11-2 cents under yesterday's finish, Sept. 110-1, Dec. 110-1, May 109-1, corn 1-11 off, Sept. 107-1, Dec. 94-1, May 91-1, oats 1 to 1 cent down, Sept. 43-1, and rye showing 1-4 decline. The outcome in provisions ranged from 12 cents drop to 5 cents gain.

Bearish sentiment as to wheat was increased by late indications that Canadian crop estimates based on threshing returns might show a larger yield than expected from recent official and private reports. Moreover, the fact that the Liverpool wheat market failed to maintain early upturns of quotations served to remove to a considerable degree the confidence of bulls. Liverpool after rising 12 cents closed at 1-4 of a cent net advance.

Cables said that pronounced early strength of the Liverpool wheat market was largely due to unsettled European political conditions and adverse weather abroad. Winnipeg wheat prices too, were temporarily more or less perturbed by fears of a wet harvest in Canada.

Downturns of Chicago wheat prices today were in the face of the fact that the movement of domestic wheat is drying up almost completely in the southwest, where nine markets today received but 299 cars, against 551 a week ago, and 893 a year ago.

Corn, oats and rye, emulating wheat, all finished at virtually the day's lowest price level. At one stage, however, September corn equaled the season's high, 109 1/2. Shipping demand was active, and No. 2 white brought $1.26 a bushel, a cent more than yesterday and a new top unequalled since 1925.

Farm and Rural Interest

Thistles Are Substituted for Hay by Northwest Farmers in Effort to Save Stock; "Scotch Gloves" For Shucking; New Prune Beer; Small Apple Crop; Hundreds To Attend Farm Sports Festival

Thistles Are Only Green Plants Seen in Northwest

Drought stricken farmers of the northwest states have turned to Russian thistles as feed for their starving stock since their hay has all been destroyed, according to a report brought to back to Illinois by a Bloomington farmer who just returned from a trip through that country.

The only stacks of hay seen from the train between Helena, Mont., and a point near the Red river were the stacks of Russian thistles along the wayside shown in green—everything else killed by drought and heat. Illinois crops looked great in comparison, he said.

This Farmer Wins Prize For Best Penny Pinching

One of the most humorous stories that we have picked up from our chats with various farmers in this locality is the tale, alleged to be true, of a farmer who used to live not far from this city. This farmer, whose name we will not divulge, always took a can of tar along with him when he went out into the cornfields to shuck corn. He hung this can on the side of his wagon, and kept dipping his hands into it, coating them with tar. In this manner he avoided the necessity of buying gloves or shucking mitts as the tar protected his hands from the rough grain. It was also said that this farmer never removed tar from his hands all during the shucking season.

Small Apple Crop Is Forecast for U. S.

Washington, D. C.—(P)—The agriculture department said that estimates based on crop reports as of Aug. 1, indicated a national 1936 apple crop of 102,487,000 bushels, the smallest production since the 1921 crop of 95,478,000 bushels.

The prospective production declined 1 per cent during July, with reductions in Virginia, Pennsylvania, California and the midwest drought areas.

The reduction, however, was offset partly by improved prospects in the Pacific northwest the department said.

"Prospects are relatively more favorable in the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain group of states where damage from late freezes was less severe than in eastern areas," the department said.

"Indications are that these western states will have 45 percent of the country's total apple crop in 1936, compared with 32 percent in 1935 and a five year average of 36 percent."

Prune Beer Is Latest California Beverage
San Francisco—Prune beer is expected to be placed on the market in western states soon.

Eberhard A. Klepper, brewmaster of a large San Francisco brewery, has been granted a patent on a process for the manufacture of prune beer, which he claims has a flavor almost identical with other beers, but a higher vitamin content.

Mr. Klepper is now negotiating for the construction of a brewery at Hollister, Calif., in the heart of the prune orchards.

Orchardists are watching with considerable interest progress of plans for the manufacture of the new beverage. They state it would open a new outlet for small prunes, always a drug on the market.

Prune beer is practical from a commercial standpoint, Mr. Klepper contends, as it costs no more to manufacture than other brands, and the process is almost identical with the brewing of cereal beer, thereby eliminating the need of installing costly new brewing equipment.

Dried prunes are mixed with water and thoroughly cooked so that all of the flavor and juices are extracted from the fruit, Mr. Klepper said. Malt is added, and the mixture then is sent through crushing machines, which prepare it for the mash tuns. It then is sent to the brew kettles.

The brew is kept boiling in the kettles from one to three hours before it is pumped through coolers to the cellar where it is aged, bottled and placed in kegs.

As College Tours are Combined with Festival
Although 10,280 farm folks and agricultural leaders have visited the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, this summer to learn what is new in agriculture and homemaking, hundreds or more visitors from every part of the state are expected September 4 and 5 for the Illinois farm sports festival.

Realizing that the fall dates may suit many who in the past have been unable to visit the agricultural college for Farm and Home Week, open house, tours or other meetings, the college has arranged for those who so desire to visit the crops experiment plots and livestock barns in connection with the sports festival.

"While June visitors to the college farms and experimental plots were able to see the crops as they started their growth, the September visitors will see the plants during harvest season," said Assistant Dean R. R. Hudelson, who has charge of the annual open house tours.

Conducted tours have been scheduled for 4 o'clock, Friday afternoon, September 4, and again at 8 o'clock, Saturday morning, September 5. The meeting place for those interested in the tours will be the New Agricultural Building.

"The tour will provide those attending or competing in the sports festival with a splendid opportunity to see the various studies the agricultural college

Buyers Scarce In Stock Mart

New York, Aug. 14.—(P)—Trades with stock to sell found in vain for buyers for a while today and the stock market slid briefly into reverse.

Financial circles said the lack of bids in some sectors reflected merely the withdrawal of professionals anxious to appraise the outlook in terms of a somewhat slower rate of industrial activity.

The absence of support paved the way for a quick shot of selling which left the ticker tape dragging a little behind transactions during the late afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 shares receded to 1.0 to 87.9. Transactions shrunk to 1,070,840 from 1,397,780 Thursday.

Down fractions to 2 or more points were U. S. Steel at 66 1/2, Westinghouse Electric at 141 1/2, Allied Chemical at 82 1/2, American Telephone at 174 1/2, Bethlehem Steel at 60 1/2, American Can at 118 1/2, Consolidated Edison at 42 1/2, Douglas Aircraft at 70 1/2, Radio at 101 1/2 and Union Carbide at 98 1/2.

Copper shares had more stamina than some other groups on the rise of export prices to a new high of 97.5 cents a pound, a peak since the middle of 1931. Kennecott gained 1/2 to 47 1/2.

International Nickel was off 1/2 to 52 1/2 and Anaconda receded 1/2 to 39 1/2. Talk around board-rooms that the drought had put a crimp in the farm implement business siphoned selling into this group. Case lost 7 at 162, International Harvester was off 2 at 80 and Deere gave up 3 1/2 at 75.

Sangamon County Oiling Few Roads

Close One Drive Along New Lake Springfield; Other Road Information

Sangamon County oiling is to resume the latter part of this week or the first of next week and roads in the vicinity of Farmington and Pleasant Plains will be given a second coating of oil. From that section oiling crews will go to Mechanicsburg where the road to Roby will be given its second coating.

The east drive of Lake Springfield is closed from the Lindsay bridge road north and the gravelled road is being macadamized.

Culver, Indiana is about 280 miles from Jacksonville via U. S. 36 to Springfield, U. S. 66 to Chenoa; U. S. 24 to Reynolds, Ind.; Ind. 43 to the junction with Ind. 10 and Ind. 10 to avoid heavy traffic on U. S. 66 the route via U. S. 36 to Decatur; Ill. 48 to Onarga; U. S. 45 to Gilman and thence on U. S. 24 is 8 miles farther but is a very fast road.

Detours on U. S. 51 between Mendota and Rockford, while not impassable in any weather are so dry at the present time the dust is extremely annoying. To avoid this condition the route through Dixon may be used with only 17 miles added to the distance and a very scenic road will be traversed between Dixon and Rockford along Rock River.

Kansas City, Mo. is 292 miles via U. S. 36 to Pittsfield; U. S. 54 to Kingdom City, Mo. and U. S. 40 to Kansas City. Via U. S. 36 to Cameron and U. S. 69 through Excelsior Springs to Kansas City, 330 miles. Both routes are paved.

Illinois State Fair opens today Automobile races under auspices of A. A. Contest Board on Saturday, August 22nd.

A SIGNIFICANT conversation was taking place between the dark-haired young man and the others at his table.

"What's the reason for getting me into these clothes the minute I get to town?" the young man asked in a low, level tone.

The same reason that brought you to town, that paid your train fare from Chicago, Nels. Thornton Black, who was known as "Steve" to a small group of "special friends," spoke quietly.

"Cut the preliminaries. What wedding reception am I to crash tonight?"

"You're wrong this time . . . you start your job right here. What do you think, Nels, the girl walked in tonight! Looks like everything is playing into our hands. You could have knocked me over with a feather when she came through that door. You see, Nels, you're graduating from petty jewel robbery."

The young man took out a cigarette and lit it coolly. "You're not talking to me, Steve. The word kidnapping isn't in my vocabulary, but G-Man is."

"Got a white liver, Nels? Well, we've a cure for that. It's pretty strong medicine and you might have to spend a stretch inside some big house after you take it."

Nelson Ferguson's eyes narrowed. "Somebody else might be keeping me company."

"Here, here!" put in one of the trio, a fat little man with an oily voice. "Is that any way for friends to talk? Nels wants to be urged. He doesn't know what a big piece of pie he'll draw for his share. Only right, too, when he'll be taking the biggest risk. You could never make me believe Nels would scare."

"Not scared," Nels said slowly. "But this is a right pleasant planet I'm living on. A lot of the boys have left it recently."

"Those boys didn't have your brains," Bill Patrick put in. "Tell me which one of your absent friends could have engineered that Dawson deal except you and pulled three straight bank jobs without leaving a clew. Or made the police of four cities sit up and take notice for nothing. You've got to hand it to yourself. Those boys weren't as smart as you. That's why we sent for you. That's why we're willing to take a small slice if you pull the job."

"What job?" Nels sat down. "Know who that girl is I pointed out to you?" Black asked. "No."

"They call her the Golden Girl."

Rich and Reckless

And once he turned, and his eyes met hers steadily for a moment.

"Plenty . . . police." "Police!" Molly spoke with the disdain of one who has known only the friendly protection of the guardians of the peace.

They were inside now, and a tall, suave-looking man came toward them, smiling. Molly felt his gaze rest on her for a moment with sudden, sharp interest.

"He knows I'm not a regular customer," she hazarded mentally, "and suspects I'm all set for something exciting."

The proprietor signaled to a waiter, who piloted them to a table.

Molly curved her mouth downward to signify to Wick her disappointment. Wick had been stuffy, deliberately building up an atmosphere which was about to collapse. There was absolutely nothing here to thrill or excite one.

The big room had the usual polished dance floor. A large revolving mirrored disc in the center of the ceiling bathed the dancing area in a flood of shifting rainbow squares. Mirror panels were set in the walls between other panels decorated with vivid red poppies.

The crowd had not yet come to life. People were sitting at tables indifferently, looking at a quite ordinary show with bored eyes. Perhaps after a while that girl with hair like green straw would be crying in her cup and that ugly man with her hair would flourish a knife—as Brent's edition would have it.

The music had begun. Loudly, brassy and insistently, but the tune was familiar. Nothing daring or sinister in that!

He will be taken to Chester penitentiary next week to begin serving a life sentence recommended by the jury last Saturday.

The defense, Attorneys Epler and Myron Mills, based its motion for a new trial on alleged errors in instructions and a contention that a 9-year old girl who was a state witness was not competent because of her youth.

Mrs. Mary S. Wadsworth Writes On Peace-making

The following article entitled "Peace-making in Geneva" was written by Mrs. Mary S. Wadsworth, wife of Dr. Julian S. Wadsworth at Geneva, Switzerland, July 28. The article describes Mrs. Wadsworth's impression of a move for peace made while Elle Selassie, with his Abyssinian entourage was in Geneva. It concerns a tree which was planted several years ago in the hope of international peace.

The article follows:

It was such a tiny little tree but now it is making rapid growth and some day will be a fine silver-bell conifer on the lawn in front of the rose garden of Carlton Park. It was planted in 1932 when the world was making its splendid effort for disarmament. What days those were of promise and unquestioned faith! For months circles of prayer had been sustained in all the churches of Switzerland and choirs were singing Caesar Franck's "Beatitude." Then came artists from the leading capitals of the Continent to lend their voices to the united choir of the League of Nations. It was a noble effort and should have the encouragement and support of all.

A striking evidence of the growing interest in internationalism and the League of Nations is the large number of young people from the states and from all over the world flocking to Geneva. The streets are thronged with them and our hearts are touched and cheered as we look down from our windows and watch an almost continuous procession of students visiting the new nearly-completed Palace of Nations. The youth of the world are feeling the urge of world responsibility. They are saying one to another, "It is for us to bring in the time when nations shall not lift up a sword against nations, nor shall they learn war any more."

June, 1936, and a little black man stands with solemn dignity before an audience of representatives of 52 nations of the world. His empire lost, he has come from the mountains and deserts of Ethiopia where he has witnessed the terrible agony and death of his people. He has come to tell these representatives of white civilization, in whose world he has trusted for aid, again to his people's enemy, he has come to tell them of their broken promises of their neutral and shameless desertion. I, Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, am here today to claim that justice which is due my people and the assistance promised to it eight months ago when 52 nations asserted that an aggression had been committed in violation of international treaties. But that the aggressor would not triumph for the purposes of the Covenant would be employed to insure the reign of right and the future of civilization. It is international morality that is at stake. God and history will remember our broken promises. The representatives of the 52 nations who had come to give judgment dispersed, humiliated and condemned.

Several days have passed and the Negus is taking his departure from Carlton Park and Geneva. Having claimed to be the Emperor of a conquered country, not withstanding Italy's bold proclamation to the contrary, and the Assembly having issued its decision, Switzerland cannot permit a longer residence. It is almost the midnight hour. A full moon hangs over Lake Lemana and Mont Blanc glimmers in its light. The hour of the going of the deposed Emperor is unannounced. Let Geneva might be unable to protect him from the enthusiastic crowds who would surround him at the station. Accompanied by guards and his cortege of Abyssinians, with head slightly bent, wrapping his cloak about his slim figure, with a calm and a dignified air, he descends the stairs and passes out into the night. Not into the darkness but into a light never before so golden. From the deserts of Abyssinia he had fled, making the long journey to Geneva to plead the cause of his country, strong in courage and with faith in the triumph of justice and morality. Now, is he returning to his lost kingdom with hopelessness and despair? Perhaps. But out into that golden light Haile Selassie disappears not as one defeated but triumphant and glorified. History will record him as one towering above the nations' representatives in the Council Hall, greater even than King or Emperor.

Beside the little blue conifer in our picture stands fourteen year old Asrat Kassa, son of the Governor of Gondar, both members of the entourage of the Negus. "Where did you learn your English?" my husband asked. "In the Mission School at Addis Ababa." And looking trustfully up into the eyes of the one who had sympathetically addressed him, Asrat asked "God is always good, isn't He? Do you think He will give Abyssinia back to us? When do you think the judgment will be given?"

Mrs. Alexander Haddon of New York also stands beside the little Peace Tree. It is she who with her husband founded and has for twelve years carried on the Students' International Union in Geneva. Located at 41 Quay Wilson. It was organized to promote understanding among the youth of the world. During its summer Institutes, discussions are held by members of the Secretariat of the League of Nations and the International Labor Office, beside simple and beautiful tables on world problems. Expert leaders guide the work of individual students and advise about methods of research and courses of reading. Among the scholars and statesmen who have addressed the Union assemblies are Sir Gilbert Murray, Viscount Cecil, Edward Bees, William Rappard, Harold Butler, Salvador Madariaga and Noel Baker. The Union with members in fifty-one different countries maintains throughout the year an International Students' Center. This is only one of the many international organizations in Geneva.

The fourth person in the picture is my husband, who thinks peace and believes in peace the day long, and all through the night dreams of a warless world. For twelve years after the war, working for international friendship at Chateau-Thierry, he has been now for more than five years Minister in the Interest of World Peace at Geneva.

In these days of disappointment but not of defeat, we have not lost our faith in the League of Nations. It has failed in its concerted effort to prove that aggression does not pay. It failed because its nation-members were not all willing to pay the price, to make the sacrifice. But was it not wonderful that 52 nations unitedly made an attempt which has no parallel in history! And now these 52 nations do not condone the aggressor nor reverse its verdict.

We are told by Mowrer that the League of Nations is "the product of thousands of years of slow ethical growth and already speaks for a larger proportion of the world than any other human institution." It has been in operation for barely half a generation and is still in the experimental stage. It has already done and continues to do a tremendous work in making a noble effort to prove that aggression does not pay. It has the encouragement and support of all.

It failed because its nation-members were not all willing to pay the price, to make the sacrifice. But was it not wonderful that 52 nations unitedly made an attempt which has no parallel in history! And now these 52 nations do not condone the aggressor nor reverse its verdict.

We are told by Mowrer that the League of Nations is "the product of thousands of years of slow ethical growth and already speaks for a larger proportion of the world than any other human institution." It has been in operation for barely half a generation and is still in the experimental stage. It has already done and continues to do a tremendous work in making a noble effort to prove that aggression does not pay. It has the encouragement and support of all.

A striking evidence of the growing interest in internationalism and the League of Nations is the large number of young people from the states and from all over the world flocking to Geneva. The streets are thronged with them and our hearts are touched and cheered as we look down from our windows and watch an almost continuous procession of students visiting the new nearly-completed Palace of Nations. The youth of the world are feeling the urge of world responsibility. They are saying one to another, "It is for us to bring in the time when nations shall not lift up a sword against nations, nor shall they learn war any more."

June, 1936, and a little black man stands with solemn dignity before an audience of representatives of 52 nations of the world. His empire lost, he has come from the mountains and deserts of Ethiopia where he has witnessed the terrible agony and death of his people. He has come to tell these representatives of white civilization, in whose world he has trusted for aid, again to his people's enemy, he has come to tell them of their broken promises of their neutral and shameless desertion. I, Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, am here today to claim that justice which is due my people and the assistance promised to it eight months ago when 52 nations asserted that an aggression had been committed in violation of international treaties. But that the aggressor would not triumph for the purposes of the Covenant would be employed to insure the reign of right and the future of civilization. It is international morality that is at stake. God and history will remember our broken promises. The representatives of the 52 nations who had come to give judgment dispersed, humiliated and condemned.

Several days have passed and the Negus is taking his departure from Carlton Park and Geneva. Having claimed to be the Emperor of a conquered country, not withstanding Italy's bold proclamation to the contrary, and the Assembly having issued its decision, Switzerland cannot permit a longer residence. It is almost the midnight hour. A full moon hangs over Lake Lemana and Mont Blanc glimmers in its light. The hour of the going of the deposed Emperor is unannounced. Let Geneva might be unable to protect him from the enthusiastic crowds who would surround him at the station. Accompanied by guards and his cortege of Abyssinians, with head slightly bent, wrapping his cloak about his slim figure, with a calm and a dignified air, he descends the stairs and passes out into the night. Not into the darkness but into a light never before so golden. From the deserts of Abyssinia he had fled, making the long journey to Geneva to plead the cause of his country, strong in courage and with faith in the triumph of justice and morality. Now, is he returning to his lost kingdom with hopelessness and despair? Perhaps. But out into that golden light Haile Selassie disappears not as one defeated but triumphant and glorified. History will record him as one towering above the nations' representatives in the Council Hall, greater even than King or Emperor.

Beside the little blue conifer in our picture stands fourteen year old Asrat Kassa, son of the Governor of Gondar, both members of the entourage of the Negus. "Where did you learn your English?" my husband asked. "In the Mission School at Addis Ababa." And looking trustfully up into the eyes of the one who had sympathetically addressed him, Asrat asked "God is always good, isn't He? Do you think He will give Abyssinia back to us? When do you think the judgment will be

The following article, entitled "Peace-making in Geneva" was written by Mrs. Mary S. Wadsworth, wife of Dr. Julian S. Wadsworth at Geneva, Switzerland, July 28. The article describes Mrs. Wadsworth's impression of a move for peace made while Haile Selassie, with his Abyssinian entourage, was in Geneva. It concerns a tree which was planted several years ago in the hope of international peace. The article follows:

It was such a tiny little tree but now it is making rapid growth and some day will be a fine silver-blue conifer on the lawn in front of the rose garden of Carlton Park. It was planted in 1932 when the world was making its splendid effort for disarmament.

What days those were of promise and unquestioned faith! For months circles of prayer had been sustained in all the churches of Switzerland and choirs were singing Caesar Franck's Beatus. Then came artists from the leading capitals of the Continent to lend their voices to the united choirs on the eve of the Disarmament Conference. Representatives of the nations of the world listened through the vaults of Calvin's great cathedral rounded again and again "Blessed are the Peace-makers. Blessed are the Peace-makers. Blessed are the Peace-makers, for they shall be called the Children of God."

Under the roots of the little silver-blue conifer was placed a jar containing the names of many delegates and workers for peace, clippings and journals recording efforts then being made to hasten the day when war shall be no more. Such days of joy and hope and confidence!

June, 1936, and a little black man stands with solemn dignity before an audience of representatives of 52 nations of the world. His empire lost, he has come from the mountains and deserts of Ethiopia, where he has witnessed the terrible agonies and death of his people. He has come to tell these representatives of white civilization, in whose word he has trusted for aid against a pitiless enemy, he has come to tell them of their broken promises, of their betrayal and shameful desertion. . . . Haile Selassie, I, Emperor of Ethiopia, am here today to claim that justice which is due my people and the assistance promised to it eight months ago, when 52 nations asserted that an aggression had been committed in violation of international treaties, but that the aggressor would not triumph for the resources of the Covenant would be employed to insure the reign of right and the failure of violence. . . . It is international morality that is at stake. God and history will remember your judgment. The representatives of the 52 nations who had come to give judgment dispersed, humiliated and condemned.

Several days have passed and the Negus is taking his departure from Carlton Park and Geneva. Having claimed to be the Emperor of a conquered country, not withstanding Italy's bold proclamation to the contrary, and the Assembly having wished its sessions, Switzerland would not permit a longer residence. It is almost the midnight hour. A full moon hangs over Lake Lemane and Mont Blanc glistens in its light. The hour of the going of the deposed Emperor is unannounced. Lest Geneva might be unable to protect him from the enthusiastic crowds who would surround him at the station. Accompanied by guards and his cortege of Abyssinians, with head slightly bent, wrapping his cloak about his slim figure, with a calm and a dignity almost tragic, he descends the stairs and passes out into the night. Not into the darkness but for a light never before so golden. From the deserts of Abyssinia he had fled, making the long journey to Geneva to plead the cause of his country, strong in courage and with faith in the triumph of justice and morality. Now, he is returning to his lost kingdom with hopelessness and despair? Perhaps. But out into that golden light Haile Selassie disappears not as one defeated, but triumphant and glorified. History will record him as one towering above the nations' representatives in the Council Halls, greater even than King or Emperor.

Beside the little blue conifer in the picture stands fourteen very old Asra Kassa, sons of the Governor of Gondon, both members of the entourage of the Negus. "Where did you learn your English?" my husband asked. "In the Mission School at Addis Ababa." And looking trustingly up into the eyes of the one who had sympathetically addressed him, Asra asked "God is always good, isn't He? Do you think He will give Abyssinia back to us?" When do you think the judgment will be given?"

Mrs. Alexander Haddon of New York also stands beside the little blue conifer. It is she who with her husband founded and has for twelve years carried on the Students' International Union in Geneva, located at 41 Quay Wilson. It was organized to promote understanding among the youth of the world. During its summer Institutes, discussions are held by members of the Secretariat of the League of Nations and the International Labor Office, beside seminars and Round Tables on World problems. Expert leaders guide the work of individual students and advise about methods of research and courses of reading. Among the scholars and statesmen who have addressed the Union assemblies are Sir Gilbert Murray, Viscount Cecil, Edward Benes, William Rappard, Harold Butler, Salvador Madariaga and Noel Baker. The Union with members in fifty different countries maintains throughout the year an International Student's Center. This is only one of the many international organizations in Geneva.

The fourth person in the picture is my husband, who thinks peace and believes in peace the day long, and all through the night dreams of a warless world. For twelve years after the war, working for international friendship at Chateau-Thierry, he has been now for more than five years Minister in the Interest of World Peace at Geneva.

In these days of disappointment but not of defeat, we have not lost our faith in the League of Nations. It has failed in its concerted effort to prove that aggression does not pay. It failed because its nation-members were not all willing to pay the price, to make the sacrifice. But was it not wonderful that 52 nations unitedly made an attempt which has no parallel in history! And now these 52 nations do not condone the aggressor nor reverse its verdict.

We are told by Mower that the League of Nations is "the product of thousands of years of slow ethical growth and already speaks for a larger proportion of the world than any other human institution." It has been in operation for barely half a generation and is still in the experimental stage. It has already done and continues to do a tremendous work entirely outside of national politics. It is making a noble effort and should have the encouragement and support of all.

A striking evidence of the growing interest in internationalism and the League of Nations is the large number of young people from the states and from all over the world flocking to Geneva. The streets are thronged with them and our hearts are touched and cheered as we look down from our windows and watch an almost continuous procession of students visiting the now nearly-completed League of Nations.
